Oil Pumps “Made by febi” – Manufacturing Competence for the Highest Quality

The oil pump supplies the moving parts of the engine with the required amount of oil. The oil not only reduces friction, but also dissipates heat and protects stressed engine components from overheating. In addition, it lubricates the surfaces of other sliding parts, protects them from corrosion, and dampens the mechanical engine noise.

A defective oil pump interrupts engine lubrication and can cause engine damage in a short period of time. Rely on the highest quality during replacement: The febi oil pump 101375 is manufactured in-house in compliance with the strictest testing processes.

Your advantage: While all individual parts of the oil pump are only offered separately on the OE side, febi has the oil pump 101375 as a complete set in its range - including fastening material. This facilitates the search for parts, saves on storage space, and ultimately money.
